

Once again we booked some school stalls at the Spandau Christmas Market for Saturday 7th December. Our German colleagues in Berlin organised the booking and we all agreed to make certain products to take to sell. The Spandau Christmas market, which is the biggest Christmas Market in Berlin, features a wide variety of stalls selling all sorts of Christmas gifts, as well as lively Christmas singing and dancing. Pupils and staff from our ten partner schools in Estonia, Germany, Austria, Italy, Spain, Greece, Turkey, Romania, Bulgaria and partner school Belarus co-operated together to make this event happen.

Although our Scottish pupils did not visit Berlin on this occasion, there have been exciting opportunities for the pupils in the project to undertake visits to each other's schools. For example, a party of pupils and staff from Johnstonebridge visited Berlin in May where they had an exciting time mixing with the Spandau pupils and visiting Berlin City.

The School Craft club have been making the items to sell and the Sea Salt Caramels taken to Berlin were produced here by Mrs Currie as the actual making process was deemed too risky for the children.

After Christmas we are going to try to communicate (by using Skype) with the Austrian school. This work is an exciting example of how real outcomes and experiences can broaden our European outlook, and develop the confidence and skills for life and work.

Our Sea Salt Caramels sold out completely after only an hour of trading. The Caramels tasted delicious and looked really good on the stall.

Freezing conditions made keeping warm a priority as we all served at the stall.
